

Save the Date: February 4, 2012, 10 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

You are invited to attend
a film screening and community dialogue

The New Metropolis: Building a Sustainable and Healthy Bay Area in the Age of Global Warming

Join us for a dialogue that will bring together policy makers and community members to discuss strategies for urban and suburban revitalization and environmental sustainability in the Bay Area.

Award-winning filmmaker Andrea Torrice will show segments from her recent PBS series, The New Metropolis, as well as premiere a new segment about the Bay Area.

Saturday, February 4 10 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Rialto Cinemas Cerrito
10070 San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito, California

The New Metropolis documentary uses compelling personal stories from America's first suburbs to examine the crisis of our nation's land use and transportation policies. Considered the birthplace of the American Dream, these towns were built during a period of national prosperity. Mayors, citizens, policymakers, and pundits reveal how our policies and practices over the last 75 years have resulted in unsustainable growth, exacerbated race relations and diminished the American Dream. But the films also point towards inspiring solutions.

Registration: Free, but registration is encouraged. Register by sending your name and number of tickets to green@ci.el-cerrito.ca.us. For information: www.el-cerrito.org/eqc/newmetropolis or (510) 215-4318. This event is wheelchair accessible.

Event Sponsors: City of El Cerrito Environmental Quality Committee, League of Women Voters.

This forum is part of The New Metropolis national civic engagement dialogue series on revitalizing America's older communities. It is made possible through the generous support of the Ford and Surdna Foundations.

For more information, visit: www.thenewmetropolis.com